VW Crafter Liberation VC680 Wheelchair Accessible Motor Home

This is the first time a VW Crafter has been adapted for use by disabled people looking for the classic campervan experience. The surprise is that the interior feels nothing less than spacious due to the van's long wheelbase, with cleverly designed partitions that screen off the wetroom from the living area. The design also achieves ease of movement for a wheelchair user. A tracking hoist runs the length of the interior and can be used to help people to bathe in the van's wetroom or to get in and out of bed. (There are also wheelchair tie downs.)

The rear layout is based around a lounge area with two sofas and a dining room table. The rear double doors of the VW crafter have large privacy tinted windows and can also be opened up when dining. The table folds down to neatly stow away, after which the sofas convert to a double bed.

The campervan is bright and airy throughout with beautiful upholstery and smart wood finishing providing a touch of class and a great deal of appeal.

Kintsugi Print Skirt

The Kintsugi print resembles the Japanese technique of mending broken pottery with lacquer mixed with powdered gold, providing its own symbolism. The skirt features deep pockets that can be utilised by catheter users since they have an internal opening, eliminating the need for a leg bag – the A-line shape also hides the shape of the bag. The skirt also features an elasticated waistband and handy Velcro fastenings.
